Learner Biographies and Learning Cultures: Identity and Apprenticeship in England and Germany (Paperback)

By Michaela Brockmann

Tufnell Press, United Kingdom, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Learner biographies and learning cultures constitutes an important contribution to the under-researched field of vocational education and the school-to-work transition. Drawing on Butler s concept of discursive agency and Alheit s biographical approach, the book offers a new conceptual and methodological framework for exploring young people s construction of identity over time as well as in the specific learning sites of apprenticeship - the workplace and the college. The particular approach, concerned with young people s situated subjectivities, sets it apart from existing research, much of which focuses on social reproduction and portrays young people in vocational education as non-academic with enduring identities. The comparative, multi-method ethnography is an in-depth study of sixteen apprentices in England and Germany, on two contrasting apprenticeship programmes-retail and motor vehicle maintenance. Bringing together a wealth of rich material, including young people s life stories and data from observations in workplaces and colleges, it paints a compelling picture of the individual young people as they negotiate learner identities over time, in multiple life domains and in the learning cultures of the workplace and the college. The...
